Critical Intelligence Problems Committee

DCI/ICS 3897-84

4 SEP 1984

LGEN James A. Williams, USA
Director, Defense Intelligence Agency
Washington, D.C. 20301

Dear Jim:

As you are well aware, the responsibilities of the CIPC have grown considerably since its inception and promise to continue doing so in the future. By definition, the problems assigned to CIPC for action are among the most difficult and important faced by the Intelligence Community. If we are to succeed, we have to assign our best people to this work. [redacted]

Because of the CIPC's increased workload, we have recently added two new positions to the CIPC Staff. We should like to ask that [redacted] be made available to fill one of these slots. [redacted] would serve in a senior staff officer position (GS-15) providing direct support to the Committee. He also would guide the efforts of various working groups established to solve the formidable problems which come our way. This would be a demanding job requiring the kinds of organizational, managerial and technical skills that we understand [redacted] to have. This would be a reimbursable assignment for a period of two years. We believe that it would be beneficial to [redacted] and to DIA, as well as to the IC Staff. [redacted]

Our Chief of Personnel, [redacted] is available to consult on any aspect of this proposed assignment. He may be reached at [redacted] our Executive Secretary, will be pleased to answer any questions regarding details of work on the CIPC Staff. His telephone number is [redacted]

Sincerely,

[redacted]
Chairman
